The Week: We were busy, busy, busy this week! We finished up learning about quite a few subjects and took quite a few tests, as well as had some fun in between! The children have been behaving so well in class that it's looking like we will get a party very soon. Hopefully in time for Cinco de Mayo, which is next Thursday. If we can fill our marble jar by then, the plan is to have a piñata party after lunch and maybe even some empanadas. Please encourage your children to be on their best behavior for the next few days so we can have some fun!

Word of the Week: Unique. Very special. Being unlike anything or anyone else. Everyone is different and this week we celebrated our differences.

Reminders:

- Constellation projects are due Monday, May 2nd and we will be presenting them to the class during Science time throughout the week.
- Screen Free Week is May 2nd-8th. We started tracking our regular screen time data on a bar graph and next week we will add in the screen free data. Please be sure your child is completing this assignment nightly as it will all count as a TEST GRADE in Language Arts, Math, and Social Studies.
- We will be FAIR testing/taking our EOY Math test on May 3rd and 4th. While half the class is FAIR testing, the other half will be taking the EOY Math test.
- We will take our text features reading test on Friday, May 6th. I postponed it due to the large number of absences this week.
- Don't forget to work on the projects for our next Parent Involvement Night, which is the Living Museum.

Trivia Question: Answer the following question for 1 punch on your Earn and Return cards!! Write your answer somewhere on this newsletter. Your parents may (and are encouraged) to help you. "Which reddish-brown metal is represented by the symbol Cu?"
